

Quick Facts

Livingstone and Porcupine Hills Public Land Use Zones

The Government of Alberta has established two new Public Land Use Zones (PLUZs); Livingstone and Porcupine Hills. These areas are now regulated under the Public Lands Administration Regulation (PLAR). The intent of the new PLUZs is to manage outdoor recreational activities and provide a diversity of outdoor recreation experiences.

The Government of Alberta is committed to working with recreation groups to develop sustainable trail systems on public lands. Stakeholders will continue to be engaged through the implementation of the Livingstone-Porcupine Hills Recreation Management Plan.

What this Means for Albertans

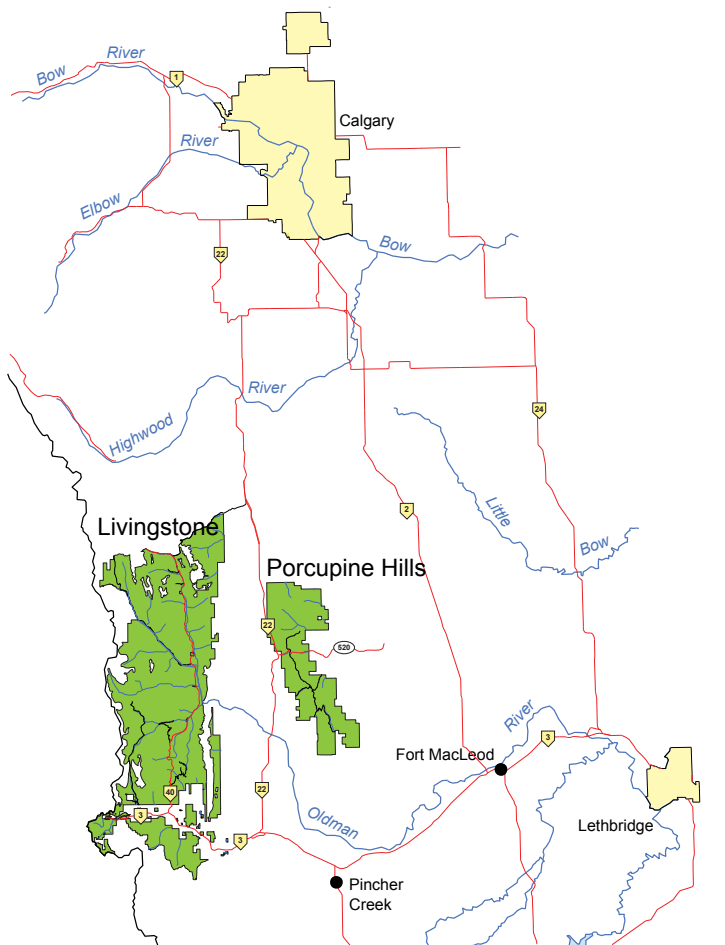

Trail Information

- Motorized access only permitted on designated trails.
- Obey signs and posted notices within the Public Land Use Zones.
- Use bridges and designated water crossings.
- Access may be prohibited in the PLUZ for reasons relating to fisheries, wildlife, and other resource management activities, topography, private property or human health and safety.
- Be aware of area regulations and advisories and any construction in the PLUZs. Plan your route accordingly.

Camping Information

- Campers must limit their stay to 14 days within a PLUZ.
- No random camping within 1 km of a provincial recreation area.
- Camping facilities must be temporary and portable.
- A person vacating a PLUZ shall restore the area to a clean and tidy condition.

Additional Information

For more information on Livingstone and Porcupine Hills visit:

aep.alberta.ca

<http://aep.alberta.ca/recreation-public-use/recreation-on-public-land/public-land-use-zones/default.aspx>