

You deserve to come home safe.

Employers have a responsibility to ensure the workplace is safe. Are you aware of your employer's violence prevention plan?

All stores

Access to large quantities of cash is limited for your protection. Always follow safe cash handling procedures.

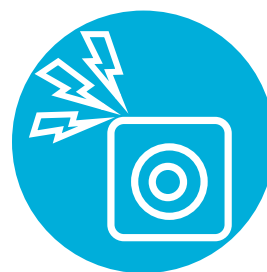

Your employer must ensure that sight lines in and out of the store are clear.

Your employer should limit ways the public can come in and out of the store. Be sure that emergency and loading doors are secured, but functioning, during your shifts.

All stores must be monitored by video surveillance and your employer must make sure that video surveillance signs are onsite and visible to the public.

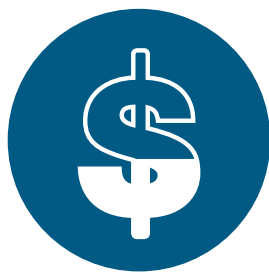

Your employer must provide you with a personal emergency transmitter when working alone. Make sure you know how it works and keep it with you when working alone.

Stores open between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m.

Your employer must have a time-lock safe and it must be on during these hours.

There will be limited quantities of high-value items such as cash, lottery tickets and tobacco products. Your employer must ensure that other high-value items are stored in a time-lock safe or secured elsewhere.

Your employer must make sure that signs informing customers about the limited high-value items and time-lock safe are always visible to the public.
