

OHS/ES eNews

During the current COVID-19 pandemic, you will receive special editions of eNews providing the latest developments in Occupational Health and Safety and Employment Standards.

COVID-19: a workplace health and safety concern

COVID-19 is a respiratory virus that can be spread either directly or indirectly.

- Direct infection can happen if:
 - Someone coughs or sneezes on you.
 - You shake hands with someone who is sick and then touch your eyes, nose or mouth.
- Indirect spread can happen from contaminated surfaces, tissues, cloth or paper.

The OHS Resource Portal now has a COVID-19 coronavirus section with bulletins related to minimizing risk from respiratory viruses.

Certificate of Recognition (COR) Update

Alberta Labour and Immigration, Certifying Partners (CPs) and the WCB have made significant temporary changes to the COR program. This will help Alberta employers maintain their CORs and auditors maintain auditor certification status during the pandemic.

Summary of temporary measures include:

- audits are simplified and limited to documentation-only from March 17 to December 31, 2020
- employers who are certified with this process will receive a one-year COR, and remain eligible for WCB PIR refunds

- CPs may use their own staff auditors to conduct documentation-only COR certification and maintenance audits to assist employers
- CPs are authorized to grant 90-day extensions to member employers for CORs that expire between March 17 and June 30
- the requirement for employers in the Small Employer Certificate of Recognition (SECOR) program to keep a SECOR trained employee on staff is waived until December 31
- CPs will conduct auditor training via live webinars
- the number of completed audits required to maintain auditor certification is reduced from two to one
- CPs may extend auditor certification expiry dates to December 31
