What will future programs of study mean for students?

Building on the strengths of our existing provincial curriculum, new programs of study will continue to be designed around subject areas at every grade level, contributing to the development of engaged thinkers and ethical citizens with an entrepreneurial spirit.

- Increased focus on literacy and numeracy development, in every subject and in every grade, supports student learning
- Same set of competencies, through all grades and subjects, supports students’ understanding of what they can do
- Greater emphasis on learning the basics across all subject areas enables their application to real-life situations
- Better understanding by students of their progress, achievements and learning needs
- More opportunities to understand multiple perspectives, including First Nations, Métis, Inuit and Francophone
- More opportunities to use technology to support the creation and sharing of knowledge
- More opportunities for students to demonstrate learning in different ways
- More opportunities to focus on learning that is important to students and their communities
- Increased engagement in their learning