

Alberta Emergency Test Alert Toolkit

School resource guide

Opportunity to build resilience

On November 16, 2022 at 1:55 p.m., Alberta Emergency Alert (AEA) will send out a test alert through various platforms, including; radio, television, the AEA Mobile Application, as well as a wireless public alert message, which sends broadcast-intrusive, life-saving emergency alert messages directly to compatible smartphones. This is a national initiative conducted twice per year across Canada by participating provinces and territories.

During the test, the critical alert siren will go off with a message to Albertans through various platforms, including all cellphones, confirming there is no need for concern. The test is an opportunity for all of us to test our own readiness to respond. This guide will help teachers and schools across Alberta use the public alerting test as a teaching moment in classrooms. The test creates space to discuss preparedness and to encourage students to go home and have a conversation with their household about developing or updating their own emergency plan.

Suggestion for in-class discussion

1. On Wednesday, November 16, 2022. That morning, advise the school or classroom that the Government of Alberta is testing the Alberta Emergency Alert system. The school will use the test alert to practice individual preparedness skills with students.
2. Following the test alert at 1:55 p.m. conduct your 15-30 minute activity. Facilitate a classroom discussion using the activity guide on page 2. Adjust the activities to fit your classroom.
3. Key learning objective. Empower students to see that they have the skills they need to manage unexpected situations. Let's practice preparedness together so we are ready for anything.
4. Key outcome. Encourage students to go home and share their classroom discussions with their household. Provide the students with an emergency kit checklist from alberta.ca/resources to help them start their preparedness journey at home.
